FDR SUMMONS 'WAR CABINET' FOR SESSION

Takes Up Request For Boost In Production of Bombers For Royal Air Force.

COMMAND OF AIR ASKED

Officials Get Report From England as Davis Leaves Advisory Group.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt today convened his "war cabinet" in extraordinary session to act on his request for greatly expanded bomber production to give the democracies "command of the air."

Meeting in the White House study, the "war cabinet" went to work on ways of carrying out the production program and received a report from Maj. Gen. H H. Arnold, army air crops chief, who recently returned from Britain with the latest breakdown of England's aerial needs.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt:

1 Named Maj. Gen. James H. Burns as right hand man and principal assistant to Harry L. Hopkins in coordinating and administrating the war air program.

2. Virtually completed dissolution of the national defense advisory commission by accepting the resignation of Chester C. Davis as its agricultural head. The functions previously handled by Davis' division were transferred to the agricultural department.

Removal of agricultural functions from NDAC leaves only a transportation division headed by Ralph Budd. White House Secretary Stephen T. Early intimated that this might be reorganized soon in a move which would end the NDAC structure in favor of the new defense system centered in the office of production management and the office of emergency management.

The meeting with the "war cabinet" was extraordinary in that Mr. Roosevelt cleared his engagement calendar for the day to concentrate on it. Attending the session were Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, Gen. Arnold and Hopkins.

"That conference will dwell on the needs as the president outlined them in his letter yesterday—needs for stepping up big bomber production," Early said.

There appeared little doubt that Mr. Roosevelt's order to

Hitler, Mussolini Radio Time Cut By U. S. Networks

NEW YORK—(INS)—Two of the nation's largest radio networks, the NBC and MBS, today announced that they will no longer broadcast the speeches of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini unless they are of primary historical importance.

Network officials emphasized that there was no understanding among them to keep the dictators off the air, but that it was merely a matter of using common sense in judging what people wanted to hear.

Hitler's one-hour harangues, they explained, are not important enough to occupy American radio time, particularly when the speeches might interfere with prearranged commercial broadcasts of decidedly greater interest to listeners.

DISPLAY HIT

Officials Get Protests Over 'Bundles For U. S.' In Park.

CINCINNATI—(AP)— Display of five empty coffins at Fountain Square in the heart of downtown Cincinnati brought several telephone protests today to city officials.

The coffins were lined up on the square with the poster captions: "Bundles For America If ——." A permit for the display was approved last week by the city council

PEPPER SAYS TIME'S COME TO GET TOUGH

Senator Declares U. S. and Britain Should Take Over Atlantic Islands.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Declaring that "it is time for the United States to get tough," Senator Pepper (D. Fla.) urged today that this nation, in cooperation with Great Britain, occupy Greenland, Iceland, the Azores, the Cape Verde and Canary Islands, Singapore and Dakar, West Africa

Pepper's "get tough" program also carried these recommendations:

That the U. S. and British navies "join openly" in the Pacific "to shut up the Japanese fleet in its lair," and that long-range bombers, manned by American pilots enlisting voluntarily, be made available to China.

"A few bombers flown by American pilots wouldn't leave enough of Tokyo to build a bonfire," he commented

The Florida senator, consistent administration supporter and early advocate of aid to Britain, said in a speech prepared for senate delivery:

"We must stifle threats against us near their source. We have already waited too long If we continue a pussy-footing policy the foe will not fear us and our friends will not respect us."

Speaking of lease-lend cargoes, Pepper asserted that the country "should resolve that no power will keep us from getting the goods to Britain, and getting them there now."

It was up to military and naval experts, he added, to decide on the best method for guaranteeing safe delivery.

As far as Hitler was concerned, Pepper said that the United States should react to him as it had to the Barbary

NO PROGRESS

Greyhound Drivers In City and Over Nation Still Idle.

Greyhound officials of the Mansfield office announced today that although the deadlock in the strike of 1,400 A. F. of L. employes of the line continues to curtail bus traffic through the city that it is being continued as much as possible.

Passengers holding through tickets are either being provided with transportation on the Pennsylvania railroad or other bus lines without additional charge. Local officials said that passengers were being inconvenienced but that traffic was being maintained.

No attempt has been made to move the strike-bound buses in the Mansfield terminal or the others stored by the system in all terminals east of the Mississippi river.

Bus line and union representatives resumed negotiations at Washington today. The union is demanding a closed shop, general ware increases and improved working conditions

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Eighty-one-year-old John H. Wittwer agreed today, in return for a suspended traffic sentence, to "go forth and drive no more."

Wittwer was brought into traffic court on a charge of driving his automobile with improper license tags. In return for leniency he said he would sell the car and give up driving.

MERCHANTS O.K. CITY FIRE TAX

Retail Association Sends Endorsement To Council Which Acts Tonight.

Support for the proposed half-mill levy for bringing the city's "rattle trap" fire equipment up to date was voiced today by the Retail Merchants' association.

In a letter to council, which will hear its finance committee recommend the levy tonight, the association stated that it has endorsed the action of the committee to place a bond issue before the voters of the city for financing the purchase of new fire equipment.

"We feel that new fire equipment will give Mansfield a higher insurance standing," said the association, "and consequently lower insurance rates for business and industries of the city. It will also do much towards the protection and safety of the citizens of Mansfield."

Last week, the Mansfield Real Estate board opposed the levy as being extravagant. The board complained that the bond issue would be too high and that real estate would be saddled with additional taxes. It said it approved modernization of the fire department but not on such a large scale.

Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee of council, reminded real estate board members that the city tax is only $16 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, one of the lowest in the state.

BUILD TANKS FOR BRITAIN

Lima Locomotive Works Expects To Ship First Unit Sept. 1.

LIMA—(INS)—The first of 400 combat tanks to be built for Britain by the Lima Locomotive works is expected to leave the production line about Sept. 1, plant officials said today.

The huge tank factory covering 102,000 square feet is nearing completion with installation of machinery scheduled to start next week. The company was silent on the sum involved in the order for tanks by the British purchasing commission, but it was reported to be $16,000,000.

JOB FOR WEST

Senate Reported Set To O. K. $10,000 Post for Ex-Solon.

Charles West, former 17th district congressmar appeared today to be headed for a $10,000 a year job in Washington.

According to dispatches from the capital, the senate has reached a compromise for confirmation of West's appointment as a member of the new transportation research commission.

Senators, the dispatches said, opposed President Roosevelt's selection of West, but agreed to drop the fight if the president will appoint a satisfactory substitute on the board for Wayne Coy of Indiana whose nomination was withdrawn because of senatorial protests.

The president is reported ready to appoint Robert E. Webb, Mayfield, Ky., and chairman of the Kentucky railroad board, to fill the Coy place.

FUND WITHIN $5478 OF GOAL

$58,895 Raised Toward Quota of $64,375 With One Day Remaining In Drive.

With one day left before the campaign officially closes, Mansfield Community Fund workers today had $5,478 to raise to reach their quota of $64,375.

Preliminary reports this morning showed that new pledges amounting to $7,418 had been received since yesterday, bringing the total amount subscribed to $58,895.

Workers were to make detailed reports on today's pledges at a luncheon meeting at noon. Preliminary figures showed today that two divisions have surpassed their year's quotas.

The industrial division headed by A. C. Rhoads went over the top by $195.50, when today's pledges, amounting to $5,390, raised the total to $39,620.50 against a quota of $39,525.

Edwin Geiger's automobile division went over the top by $20. This division chalked up a total of $1,270, exceeding the quota $1,250, when today's pledges reached $229.50.

Confidence was expressed by Rev. D. N. Roller, campaign chairman and divisional workers that the goal would be reached but indicated that all pledges might not be turned in by the time the campaign closes tomorrow night.

First reports made by other divisions included: clothing, $607.25; construction, $365; financial, $94; food, $265; organizations, $200, and public service, $267.

BELLVILLE MAN GETS 120 DAYS IN MORALS CASE

Pleads Guilty to Contributing To Delinquency of Girl, 17; Other Cases Continued.

Chance Eppley, 58, Bellville, cited with six other persons on morals charges involving two Bellville girls, 16 and 17 years old, yesterday was sentenced to 120 days in the Columbus workhouse by Judge Stuart H. Cramer in probate court.

Eppley pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of the 17-year-old girl, Judge Cramer said. He denied the accusation when questioned yesterday morning.

Cases of the other six, including the girls' parents, Verne Stambaugh, 51, and Mrs. Zelma Stambaugh, 44, were continued to next Monday at the request of defense counsel, Attys. A. S. Beach of Mansfield and Carl Swadener, Bellville.

"We are going to clean up these cases and there will be no continuance beyond Monday," Judge Cramer said.

Two other Bellville men held on contributing charges, pleaded innocent when arraigned yesterday. They were William Lindsay, 71, and Alfred Collins, 51. They were released under $500 bond for appearance Monday.

The girls' parents, charged with contributing, and the 17-year-old daughter, cited on a delinquency count, were not arraigned yesterday. They were ordered returned to the county jail to await arraignment.

Still free on bond is Ward Kershner, 65, first of the seven arrested in the case. He has not entered a plea.

Parents of the girls are accused by court officials of sanctioning illicit relations between them and the older men and collecting money for permitting relations with

GUARDS LEAVE

Coast Guardsmen Removed From Yugoslav Ships.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Armed United States coast guardsmen, stationed aboard four Yugoslav freighters in the New York harbor, were removed today. A spokesman for the coast guard indicated, however, that a sharp watch was being kept on the vessels from shore stations.

The four boats boarded by the guardsmen were the Predsednik Kopajtic, Prince Paxle, Neti and the Sreca. One of the boats, it was said, was nearly loaded and ready to sail for England with a general cargo.

Some quarters said the coast guard placed the armed guards aboard the vessels to determine whether the crews still were loyal to their fallen monarch, King Peter.

Noose Breaks So Man Shoots Self at Cuyahoga Falls.

CUYAHOGA FALLS—(UP)—Unsuccessful in a first attempt to take his life, Charles W. Doubleday killed himself with a revolver bullet yesterday in a house from which he and his wife were moving.

Police found a broken noose hanging from the ceiling indicating Doubleday had tried that method of suicide in vain.

FRIEZE TO SHOW AIR FEATS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The history of aviation an dfeats of the famous Wright brothers will be depicted on the historic Frieze high in the dome of the nation's capitol. The house yesterday adopted a resolution introduced by Rep. Thomas A. Jenkins, Ironton, O. Republican, to authorize the portrayal.

Curious Woman Juror Innocently Asks Wrong Questions, Stymies Legal Action

Attorneys Protest, Court Grants Motion to Hold Jury Disqualified.

A curious woman juror yesterday forced the drawing of a new jury panel in Richland county common pleas court and delayed the trial of a $6,814 judgment case until Wednesday.

Taken with other members of the petit jury to examine a restaurant and apartment building on West Fourth street opposite John Simpson high school the woman member innocently asked a question of a tenant of the building

The woman tenant promptly began a discourse on the defects of the building, which was involved in the case, before Court Bailiff David Lantz could stop her. Attorneys for the plaintiff who went along with the jury protested and asked that the jury be disqualified because of the irregularity.

Judge C. H. Huston granted their motion and a new jury panel was drawn yesterday afternoon. He explained to jurors that trial procedure does not permit them to ask questions that might influence the jury.

Clerk of Courts Howard Wenning said a new trial will be started Wednesday morning

The trial which was interrupted yesterday involves an action filed by John W. Ness, Mansfield contractor, for the balance he contends is due him from Geddes H Schrack for the construction of the combined restaurant-apartment on West Fourth street

In a cross-petition, Schrack contended that Ness sent him a bill for a much larger amount than the $13,000 they had agreed on as the cost of the structure. Schrack also asked $5,000 damages for defects he contends are apparent in the structure.

Attys. Beam and Beam, Glenn W Marriott Lewis Burcker, and John F. Kramer represent Ness. Representing Schrack are Attys. R. E Hutchison, Wilham F. Black and H. H. Schettler.

British Dump Bombs on Big Factory Areas

Blast At Nazi-Held French Coast As Luftwaffe Raids Belfast, Glasgow, Liverpool in Fierce Assaults; Iraq Battle Imminent.

BULLETIN

CAIRO, Egypt—(AP)—Fighting in Iraq has spread, with British planes bombing Iraqi military positions at Diwaniya and motor transport at Al Falluja, the RAF middle east command announced today. Diwaniya is on the Euphrates river, about 130 miles below Baghdad and Al Falluja is some 30 miles west of Baghdad.

(By Associated Press)

Germany's Rhineland felt the scourge of a "made-in-England" blitz today—a series of raids in which RAF bombers reported attacks on Frankfurt-Am-Main, Mannheim and other Rhine industrial centers as well as on the Nazi-held French coast.

A Berlin announcement said the RAF bombed the ancient German university town of Heidelberg, known for its student duels, and hit academic and hospital buildings.

The British, omitting mention of any assault on Heildelberg, said "a great weight" of high explosive bombs was rained on Mannheim, while other RAF raiders attacked the channel ports of Boulogne and Cherbourg.

The Germans said RAF bombs were directed at unspecified "well-known" resorts in southern and southwestern Germany, and declared that military objectives were nowhere hit.

Hitler's Luftwaffe countered with equally violent raids on the British Isles, striking again as Belfast, the capital of northern Ireland, where 79 deaths were reported in Sunday night's raid, and fiercely attacking Scotland's vast Clyde river shipyards which stretch from Glasgow to the sea. Liverpool's Merseyside docks were raked by bombs for the fifth consecutive night.

A British statement acknowledged that the Germans, hitting in "large-scale" operations, inflicted "much damage" and that the toll of dead and wounded was expected to be high. A single direct hit on a Belfast shelter claimed 12 lives, it was reported.

With daylight, a formation of Messerschmidts flashed across the channel, spattered machine-gun bullets in the streets of Dover and stabbed at the town's balloon barrage, sending three of the big "sky traps" down in flames.

A flight of RAF Spitfires sped after the Germans as they raced back across the channel.

EDEN BEGINS DEBATE ON WAR

Tells Parliament U. S. Aid Will Shorten Conflict; Explains Greek Move.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that fuller, faster, more certain American aid will shorten the war.

Eden's statement opened parliament's war conduct debate in which Government Leader Lord Moyne told the house of lords equipment already has reached Egypt to repair all losses of the Balkan campaign and "with ever increasing help from America we are hoping to send more and more support."

The house of lords voted unanimous approval of the government's conduct of the war.

Eden said aid to Greece was necessary if Britain's war of ideals was to be carried out and asserted that Greece had advised London of her intention to fight Germany alone if British help was not given.

Eden put blame for much of the Balkan debacle upon the Yugoslav government of Prince Regent Paul, which he charged had deceived Britain as to the extent to

473 Slugs Placed In City's Parking Meters In April

At least 473 Mansfield motorists received free parking during April. Just that many slugs were found in the city's 413 parking meters during the month by Lloyd Kochenderfer, meter collector.

Other drivers contributed $4,143.52 for an average of $153.46 daily. Each meter took in an average of 36 cents daily.

Although the majority of drivers paid for a full hour's parking, nearly as many only wanted a 12-minute stop. Nickels in the meters amounted to $130.40 while pennies totalled $2,004.62.

Also reported was $18.50 in dimes which, according to Kochenderfer, are used by motorists without nickels, pennies or slugs available.

By far the greatest amount is placed in the meters on weekends. Meters are kept in operation until 9 p. m. Saturday nights and shopping crowds swell the collections to almost twice that of week-days

HIT BY BLAZE

Plating Company Damaged as Short Circuit Starts Fire.

Fire breaking out in the second floor of the Mansfield Plating company, 153 East Fifth street, today at 7:30 a. m. kept firemen busy for more than an hour and caused considerable damage.

Firemen said that workers at the plant attributed the blaze to a short circuit in an electric fuse box. The plating division on the first floor was unharmed by the fire which centered near the experimental plastics division above.

The plant has been producing plastic panels for dome lights in buses and other articles. Most of the damage occurred near the plastic machinery in the southeast corner of the second story.

Workers told firemen that the short circuit from the fuse box travelled up a pipe to the second floor where the flames broke out.

Company officials said the fire would not seriously curtail operations of the plant.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legend of Broadway.

THESE were the laughter boys. They got their laughter at night, in the spotlights of little rooms where people smoked and danced and drank what the law said they couldn't drink.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Only the laughter boys knew how hard it was to make customers giggle and roar; better than anyone who entertained along the midnight circuit, they knew how large an egg could be, and how heavy, and how easily laid.

They met all kinds of interesting people. Big names, and bad names. All these laughed at the glib clowns—but sometimes they did not like what they laughed at, and that is why the jesters led such interesting lives in these swift, gilded days.

* * *

The clown was Joe E. Lewis. He is a funny man with a wry, scarred face, and how he got them is an old story.

Joe had another hoodlum brush here on Broadway—but the ending was less dire

* * *

Frankie Carbo (whereabouts now unknown) was the gangster of this legend. He was the silent but forceful hand behind the middleweight boxing situation of the town at that time; he had, if Mike Jacobs will pardon me, all the champions and the contenders for the titles in his vest pocket.

At the time of this legend, one of the contenders, known in circles pugilistic as Popeye Woods, was headlining a Garden show—one of those elimination things. But while a jammed house watched, the bout fizzled into a waltz which had even the cuff customers booing.

After the fiasco, silent Manager Frankie Carbo went out with his retinue to relax. He went to the Frolics, on the sight of the current Beachcomber, where Joe E. Lewis was headliner.

* * *

You know Joe, he makes his monologues sound current with a flock of ad libs as up-to-date as the next edition. So he impromptu'd a hilarious bit about the fight. You know Joe's style:

"Popeye Woods, he got t'ree t'ousand dollars for doin' a dance. I kin dance, but do I get t'ree t'ousand dollars dollars? .Me, I get the hook!"

That was funny stuff, to everyone but Mr. Frankie Carbo.

Frankie jumped up from the table, and it took all the strength of four of his pals to hold him back.

* * *

It was the pals who got Frankie to leave, finally.

"It's a long night," they coaxed, "and you can catch up with him later."

In the lobby on the way out Frankie saw a big blow-up of Joe E. Lewis—one of those larger-than-life pictures. He grabbed it off the easel and lugged it over to Dave's Blue Room.

There he set it up near the cashier's desk and began to throw things at it. Nice soft, squashy things— pies, catsup, scrambled eggs, cheesecake.

Dave knew Frankie. He knew better than to protest. This wasn't the first time Frankie had eased off a fury in the Blue Room, and Dave knew the gangster would pay for the damage. Sure enough after a few minutes of solo target practice, Frankie shouted to all the other customers in the room:

"Come on folks, t'row stuff at this bum's pitcher. I'll pay for it."

* * *

Meanwhile, word had been sent to Joe to keep out of Frankie's way—and when the second show went on that night, Joe wasn't in it. He was sitting in a hot little phone booth, dropping nickels and calling all the underworld lads he knew to "straighten him out" with Frankie.

The boys got to Frankie, and the legend is that the contract was pretty tough, but they got Frankie to "lay off."

Joe's ad libbing has changed a little. He monologs about stolen ferry boats, Ted Lewis, Lawrence Tibbett and others, but not about fighters.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — With some trepidation I've been inquiring as to the nature of Shirley Temple's come-back role—steeling myself for a casual: "Shirley? Oh, she's playing Mickey Rooney's murderous great-aunt—sort of a change of type."

As the picture is "Babes on Broadway," we're probably safe from any change so startling, but things have been going on out here which leave room for doubt about anybody's casting, even Shirley's.

ROBBIN COONS

Already pointed out are the Turner - Bergman transitions for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde:" Lana, screen personification of the night-club-blooming rose, playing the Great Lady; Ingrid, the outdoor gentlewoman type, playing the roisterous, affectionately generous barmaid.

* * *

There's no basis for expecting Marlene Dietrich ever to play a nun, but to find good, dependable Ian Hunter playing stage-door wolf in "Ziegfeld Girl" is a preparation for anything. George Sanders, long committed to wolfishness in and out of Gestapo guise, doesn't play exactly fair. He's been a decent guy in "Rage in Heaven" and "Foreign Correspondent" but he never stays that way long enough to be predictable. Right now in "Man Hunt" he's up to his old Gestapo tricks.

Even a society girl doesn't know what circles she'll move in once Hollywood picks on her. Gene Tierney started out innocently in "Frank James" as the sheltered daughter of the publisher, but what happens next? Why, she turns up as the scarcely sheltered daughter of "Tobacco Road" and now she's the pretty lady bandit of "Belle Starr."

* * *

So we don't even gulp when we hear that they're hoping to bring Lillian Gish, the fragile fluttering heroine of the Griffith silents, back to pictures as one of the "touched" sisters of "Ladies in Retirement."

LABOR CHALKS UP VICTORY IN OHIO SENATE

Secures 35-0 Passage of Bill To Safeguard Working Conditions of Mines.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Organized labor today had chalked up a major legislative victory in the senate in the unanimous passage of the Nickels-Hughes bill to safeguard the lives of Ohio miners, and had administered a stinging rebuke to a powerful employers' lobby in preventing, for the second time in less than a week, passage of the Reiners-Wittemore to revise the state's unemployment insurance laws.

Threatened opposition to the mining recodification bill faded after Sen. Walter G. Nickels (R. New Philadelphia) one of its authors, told his colleagues that they faced the choice of enacting a law to prevent disasters such as have taken the lives of more than 100 Ohio miners in the past year, or of yielding to pressure from mine operators who objected to spending money for safety equipment.

Opponents of the measure had conducted an intensive campaign to defeat it during the long weeks it was pending before the senate commerce and labor committee. The minority group of operators and state officials who served on the governor's special commission, on whose recommendations the bill was drafted, also was on record against its provisions.

Several senators had been reported pledged to oppose the bill, but no voice was raised against it last night after Nickels painted a graphic picture of existing conditions underground.

"After all," said Nickels, "while it may cost the operators a few extra dollars for an extra fan, or perhaps $200 more for a piece of mining machinery, what is that compared to human life? It is our duty to provide for our miners every element of safety."

Tense galleries, packed with representatives of labor, looked on as the roll call was taken and the vote recorded as 35 to 0. The bill was sent to the house where it will be given an immediate hearing in committee before it is brought out for a vote before the scheduled adjournament this weekend.

SPECIAL CHECK

Mansfield BUC Office Starts New Defense Labor Survey.

The Mansfield district office of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation today began a special survey to obtain new estimates of the employment needs if Richland county plants producing defense materials are operated at a maximum capacity on a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week basis as recommended by President Roosevelt.

C. W. Handley, district manager, announced that the office had about 20 plants in its district working on defense contracts. Although the office has just completed a survey of the district's labor reservoir for national defense purposes, Handley said that no announcement could be made yet of the results.

Particular attention will be given to the number of additional workers, skilled or semi-skilled, which local defense industries would need to operate on a full-time basis.

Findings of the Mansfield and other Ohio offices will be forwarded to Washington when compiled.

Measure Would Authorize 100 Man Increase In State Police Personnel.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The Hunter bill, expanding the personnel and police powers of the state highway patrol, was sent to Governor Bricker for signature today after passing the house by a vote of 75 to 38.

The measure authorizes a personnel increase from 200 to 300 patrolmen, and vests them with power to make arrests of persons riding in automobiles on state highways, who are suspected of having committeed felonies.

The bill met opposition from organized labor when it was being shaped by a senate committee, but this subsided when its author, Sen. George C. Hunter (R. Ironton), assured his colleagues in the senate last week that it was not the intention of the administration to employ the patrolmen in labor disputes.

If another bill pending in the legislature, designed to deprive constables of the power to make arrests for traffic violations outside of municipalities, becomes a law, only the highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies will be empowered to police the highways.

This bill, by Rep. William D. Radcliff (R. Pickaway), has already passed the house and is pending in the senate.

WOULD EXEMPT MEN OVER 30

Selective Service Director Says They're 'Too Settled.'

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—The national director of selective service wants to revise U. S. draft procedure to exempt men over 30 years old.

"They are too settled after that age," declared Gen. Lewis S. Hershey in recommending congressional action to give the president the right to defer by age classes. "They are past their physical peak and others find it hard to learn new skills. That has been our experience in the draft to date."

General Hershey estimated that the United States would have 1,418,000 men in the field by July 1, and that from 60,000 to 75,000 would be inducted each month during the remainder of the year.

LARGEST CITIZENSHIP CLASS HAVING FINAL EXAMS TODAY

Believed to be the largest class to apply for citizenship papers in Richland county, 81 foreign-born residents appeared before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court for final examinations today.

All but two of the 81 questioned by State Immigration Official L. E. Cox of Youngstown, were from Mansfield. Nadizhda O'Connell and Peter Nordyke are Plymouth residents.

Rush for naturalization at this time is attributed to the world situation. The class was prepared for examination in the county WPA adult education classes and the special night school conducted by Miss Henrietta Frank at the courthouse.

Questions asked by the state immigration official pertained to city, county, state and federal government. They also included names of public officials and subjects of general interest.

Applicants for citizenship are:

Up and Down THE STREET

The courthouse candy vendor did a big business with all corridors in the county building crowded with visitors today—naturalization day for a big class of candidates. Most of the visitors were friends of citizenship applicants and in several instances these friends were pressed into service when witnesses for applicants failed to appear on time. They served as witnesses in the place of the absentees.

With the sale of new automobiles continuing at a record-breaking pace, added activity for licensing the new cars has taxed the Richland County Auto club to such an extent that the staff has been enlarged from three to four. During the past week an average of 33 new licenses are issued daily along with about 25 transfer certificates. Approximately half of the transfers are for new cars, Frank Beverstock, secretary, said.

Welfare Department to Replace Cottage Hit By Fire.

DELAWARE — (U.P.) — State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood today announced plans to rebuild with fireproof construction a cottage at the state girls' industrial school which was damaged badly by fire.

Fire departments from Delaware and Dublin battled the flames while inmates of the school watched from a nearby hill. There was no confusion among the inmates and no attempts to escape. Sherwood said.

AMBASSADOR WILL SPEAK IN 3 CITIES

Hopes To Increase Sentiment For Further U. S. Measures To Assist Great Britain.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A direct appeal to the people of the middle west to help save Great Britain from collapse will be made within the next 10 days by British Ambassador Lord Halifax, it was learned today.

Lord Halifax, who still is a member of the British war cabinet, plans to leave Washington tomorrow for Chicago, Minneapolis, and Kansas City. He will speak in each city.

The British envoy's decision to make a hurried speaking trip to the middle western cities is believed to have been prompted by reports that there is little sentiment in the so-called "isolationist belt" for any measures by this government, such as convoying, which might lead to American involvement in the war.

Lord Halifax hopes to convince the people of the middle west that this is not an imperialistic war, but a world revolution and that not only is the existence of the British empire at stake but the fate of every liberty loving man and woman throughout the world as well.

Those who know Lord Halifax believe he would like to see the United States navy start convoying supplies to Great Britain immediately in order to curtail the terrific shipping losses now being suffered by the British in the north Atlantic.

However, the British envoy is not expected to go so far as to advocate this drastic move publicly in his middle western speeches.

He feels that it would not be proper for him to tell the American people what they should do, but that his duty is to point out the seriousness of Great Britain's position; the righteousness of its cause, and the dangers which he believes will confront the world if Germany conquers the British Isles.

He takes the position that it is up to the American government and people to decide what methods should be adopted to save Britain and counteract the spread of totalitarianism.

President Joe Donnelly of the Ohio State league paid a quick visit to Mansfield yesterday for a last minute check-up of the baseball situation here before the league opener, and also to spy on the umpires trying out for jobs in the circuit.

.. "Enthusiasm seems to be running high throughout the league," Joe reported, "and I really look for the best season we've ever had.

"Baseball schools conducted in some towns didn't draw the number of players they had in the past, but the calibre of the ball players who did try out was much improved over other seasons."

* * *

Donnelly is spending the entire week visiting league cities and before the week is over will see all the candidates for umpiring jobs in action.

He disclosed that of the nearly 40 umpires who applied for jobs, and the 30 who agreed to report for tryouts, only 14 finally showed up. Some of the umpires got jobs in other leagues and others got defense jobs.

Joe expects to decide next Sunday on the six successful arbiters to be hired by the league.

* * *

The Ohio State loop prexy will be in Mansfield for the opening game with Lima one week from tomorrow night, and will attend Fremont's home opener the following night, he said yesterday.

* * *

Donnelly has his own ideas on how umpires should operate, and if they are carried out, league fans will be spared those long debates which slowed up so many games last year.

"Every ball player and every manager has a right to question an umpire's decision," Donnelly declared, "but an umpire should listen to a squawk just long enough to find out what it's about, and then he should close the argument. If that means tossing a player out of the game, then that's what the umpire should do."

* * *

Donnelly indicated that the big fellows among the squad of 14 candidates will get first call on the arbiters' jobs "if they have the ability to go with their size.

"I like big guys in those blue uniforms," Joe said. "The big fellows have an authority all their own, and ball players think more than twice before swinging once on fellows like Guthrie in the American association and Hubbard in the American league.

* * *

The umpire leads a merry life
But hasn't time to sing.
He's out of luck
If he doesn't duck
When athletes start to swing.

* * *

It does beat all how this knife and fork league keeps up. George Percy, secretary of the Moose league, called up last night to say that the Moose keglers will hold their dinner Wednesday night at 6:30 at the lodge hall and "we want you there."

It wasn't enough that my schedule called for the A league dinner last night, and the C league party Thursday night, and a football game tonight. George has to fill that Wednesday date too.

If this keeps up through Sunday, you can address me on Monday at Bed No. 1, Mrs. Hess' Rest Home, Highland avenue.

Two of the city's southpaw women bowlers turned their hand to golf for the first time in their lives yesterday and set something of a swing marathon at Coolridge. It took Hazel Hilborn and Pauline Shaw's pair one hour and five minutes, so I'm told, to play the first hole. One had a 12 for the distance, and the other a 10.

Leaders Keep Up Hot Pace

Cardinals and Tribe Ride Right Grooves.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THE FLOWERS that bloom in the spring are as common in baseball as dandelions in your front lawn—and they usually wither faster. That's why few people get excited at spectacular showings in the early season.

* * *

But a sneaking suspicion is getting around that the St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians, the two hottest members in the big leagues, are riding in their right grooves at the head of the pack.

* * *

The Indians won their 11th consecutive game yesterday, 2-1, from the Washington Senators with Rapid Robert Feller pitching three-hit ball, striking out a dozen batters and walking seven.

The Cardinals notched their 10th in a row at Boston with a 5-1 shellacking of the Braves behind the five-hit hurling of Ernie White, the 24-year-old southpaw from Pacolet Mills, S. C., who led the American association last year in both percentage of victories and earned runs.

The Cardinals coasted to their triumph as White held the Braves scoreless until Maxie West delivered a pinch-homer in the eighth while his teammates banged two Boston pitchers for 11 safeties, including a two-run homer by Enos (Country) Slaughter.

The New York Yankees lost their fourth game out of seven western engagements by a 7-3 tune at Detroit. Two veterans, Tommy Bridges and Lefty Gomez, took the mound opposite each other and Bridges walked off last—with a six-hitter to his credit.

* * *

The Tigers also made just six hits, but they scored five runs off Gomez in the third, when they bunched three of their safeties. Pinky Higgins doubled with the bases loaded to spark this uprising.

* * *

Lester McCrabb, a "control" pitcher who had an unimpressive record of 10 wins and 11 losses last season at Toronto in the International league, scored his second success in three decisions for the Philadelphia Athletics by scattering 12 Chicago hits over 11 innings and batting in the winning run for a 5-4 verdict and dropped the White Sox into a tie with Detroit for third in the American league.

Rain washed out all other scheduled games.

Manager Tom Sheehan called on the old reliable, Elon Hogsett, to pitch the slugging Minneapolis Millers into a tie for first place today in the American Association.

GREENBERG SWINGS BAT FOR LAST TIME

DETROIT — (AP) —Hammerin' Hank Greenberg, the big Detroit outfielder, swings his major league war club for the Detroit Tigers the last time today—for at least a year.

And tomorrow the tall Brooklyn Jewish boy, whose hard-earned career won the hearts of Detroit baseball fans, will exchange a $50,000 annual salary for a $21-per-month stipend that selective service recruits receive. Hit bat will be replaced by a rifle.

Deacon Shakes Batting Order

Reds Average Two Runs, Five Hits Per Game.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Desperate for a victory, Manager Bill McKechnie is shaking up the batting order of his Reds.

His latest idea, subject to change without notice, confronts the Phillies today with exactly the same lineup that wound up the 1940 season in triumph. This represents the sixth change since the new season started, and, if it works, the whole act may be entitled, "the old ways were better."

* * *

Johnny Vander Meer, cheated by weather out of a chance to snap the Reds out of their private twilight of the gods yesterday, is still the Deacon's pitching choice, with either Cy Blanton or Ike Pearson opposing him.

* * *

The Deacon is supposed to be somewhat put out by the postponement, inasmuch as it takes more than a heavy dew to stop a game back in Cincinnati and further inasmuch as he had his pitching plans all lined up for the remainder of the eastern swing.

He was going to pitch Vandy yesterday, Bucky Walters today, and Paul Derringer tomorrow against the New York Giants. However, it doesn't seem to matter a lot who does the pitching until the Reds start hitting the ball wih something harder than butterfly nets.

As McKechnie explains:

* * *

"In the last half dozen games the Reds' run colmun reads: 2, 3, 2, 2, 2, 0. This brings the total to 11, an average of two per game. During the same six games they have averaged slightly less than five hits per game.

"This," he added reflectively, "is far below championship form." After some more reflection, he added again that "we're in a receptive mood for a deal that would bring us a hard-hitting outfielder."

A. B. C. ALLEY MEET COMES TO CLOSE

ST. PAUL —(INS)— America's biggest sports event—the 55-day American Bowling Congress—comes to the end of its long 1941 trail late today with one championship, in the five-man division, already clinched.

The team competition ended last night, leaving the Vogel Brothers' squad of Forest Park, Ill., in first place, good for a prize of $1,500. The Vogels' top mark was 3,065, rolled March 30.

Some doubles and singles remained to be bowled on the late shift today, but unless lightning strikes in the last minute, the other 1941 A.B.C. champions will be: Doubles—William Lee and Ray Farmess of Madison, Wis., with 1,348; Singles—Fred Ruff of Belleville, Ill., with 745; All-events—Herold Kelly of South Bend, Ind., with 2,013.

HERMAN TRADED TO BROOKLYN DODGERS

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Chicago Cubs announced early today they had traded Second Baseman Billy Herman to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Outfielder Charley Gilbert and an undisclosed sum of cash.

The Cubs also announced they had purchased Infielder Johnny Hudson from the Montreal Royals of the International league for $25,000.

Missing Siegbert Proves Mystery Of Braves Camp

What has happened to First Sacker Harry Siegbert remains the major mystery in the Braves' camp.

President George Satterlee said today that he has not heard from the veteran guardian of the first cushion since he returned his signed contract several weeks ago.

Inquiries to Siegbert's home in Chicago have gone unanswered.

* * *

The husky infielder was to have joined the training squad last Thursday. When he failed to arrive with the other infielders and outfielders, Manager Alex Clowson figured that he would join the squad over the week-end. But Harry was still among the missing today.

There is no fear that Siegbert has been inducted into Uncle Sam's military forces as he emphasized there was no likelihood of this happening this season.

Other hold-overs of the 1940 season who have not reported as yet are Catcher Walter Missler of Toledo and Second Baseman Hal Hundemer of Cincinnati.

Neither Missler nor Hundemer has signed his 1941 contract, and there is some doubt whether either will report. The absent catcher has indicated that he may retire from baseball to keep his job in a Toledo factory, and Hundemer has notified club officials that he would be unable to play this year at the salary offered due his recent marriage.

Jack Husman, a Toledo boy, who was signed on the recommendation of the Cleveland scouts, will not report. The sandlot pitching star informed Brave officials that he has decided to keep his factory job.

The Mansfield squad working out at the Fairground was reduced by one yesterday by the voluntary withdrawal of Infielder George Green of Cleveland. A sore arm that failed to respond to treatment was the reason Green quit the squad.

Release slips are expected to drop thick and fast into the hands of candidates after today's workout. Clowson stated this morning that the squad will be reduced by about 10 players this evening. He did not identify any of the players slated to take the long trek homeward.

* * *

Another practice game was played at the Fairground yesterday, and the batters had a field day. Infielders were ducking all afternoon as line drives smashed through the inner cordon.

* * *

The score of the game is insignificant, although it was something like 12 to 5. What pleased Clowson was the hitting power displayed by several of the candidates.

Outfielder Bill Salem got his second home run of the training season with two on the sacks in the first inning. His blow cleared the left field wall.

The "homer of the way," however, was smashed by Pitcher Jimmy Coleman, who blasted one of Clowson's pitches high over the left field barrier with plenty to spare. It was the longest home run hit this spring.

* * *

Coleman and his sidearm delivery also showed up well on the mound, as did Harold Robison of Erie, Pa., who hurled hitless ball in his three-inning stretch. He struck out eight of the nine men who faced him, the other out being made on a fly to centerfield.

* * *

Joe Donnelly, president of the Ohio State league, was a spectator at yesterday's workout, and he and Clowson were the guests of the Hermit club at its regular dinner meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Regulation Game Planned

12-Minute Quarters Will Be Played By Tygers.

It's a regulation game in every respect that the Mansfield high school football Tygers will stage tonight under the lights at stadium field at 8 o'clock when Coach Paul Snyder's gridders meet a senior-alumni eleven in the closing feature of spring practice drills.

* * *

"We'll even play the full 12-minute quarters," Snyder said today, "and the starting lineup of the Tygers will be the same as the one we expect to use next fall."

* * *

Composed mainly of players who saw regular action last fall as juniors, the veteran Tyger team has caught the fancy of Mansfield fans this far ahead of next fall's campaign.

An estimated crowd of 600 turned out a couple weeks ago to see the Tygers roll over a good Toledo Waite aggregation three touchdowns to one in a practice scrimmage.

Indications are that tonight's crowd will come close to autumnal proportions. Since the game comes under the head of intra-mural athletics, a small admission fee will be charged in the hope of paying expenses for the practice games with Waite and Coshocton when the gate was free.

Bill Keefe and Al Fendrick will be the officials.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Clarence D. Campbell, who piloted Van Wert high school's football squad to four championships in the Western Buckeye league, is the new coach at Cleveland Shaw.

He will take over the post in September as successor to Trevor Rees, who resigned to become freshman coach at Ohio State university. Campbell's five-year Van Wert record shows 38 victories, 10 defeats and four ties. NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Texas will have four or five native sons (all top-flighters) in next month's national open at Fort Worth and every dime the cowboys can raise will be riding on 'em. So if you like Sam Snead, or some other alien, there's your chance, plungers . . . Bob Pastor will be ready to go next month and a coast shot with Turkey Thompson is in the making . . Larry MacPhail is a cutie in more ways than one. He called Gallahadion in last year's derby and had a century-note riding on Whirlaway Saturday . . . All Bob Feller has to do to get an extra 1,000 $ on the Eddie Cantor air show tomorrow night a week is toss a no-hitter between now and then . . . DERBY AFTERMATH

First reservations for the 1943 Ky. Derby have been made by a Louisville business man whose daughter will be debutanting about that time and will rate a party . . . Conn McCreary may be the stuff, but Eddie Arcaro's sweet ride on the temperamental Whirlaway stamps him as the year's top jockey in this book . . . Beg Pardon Dept.: Yesterday we reported that none of the 400-odd experts in the Derby Win-a-Hat contest picked Staretor for second place. Well, Neil Stanley of the Santa Ana (Calif.) Register didn't do a thing else but. Also, he called Whirlaway to win, which gives him a one-two punch—and a tie with that Old Texas Ranger, Bud Burmester, who dittoed, for the best picking job that has come to light so far.

An eight team league is hoped for by the club. All members who were not present last night and who wish to play, are urged to qualify this week. Scores can be turned in to Chuck Schlegel or Bob Miller or to Irish McGee at Possum Run.

A six man team is to be selected to play Galion and Ashland J. A. C. teams in the near future. The league opening is tentatively scheduled for Monday, May 12, at 4:30 p. m.

WIN FIVE STRAIGHT

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohio State's tennis squad today held its fifth consecutive match victory of the season, a 9 to 0 win over Illinois on the Buck courts. The Scarlet swept through the entire singles and doubles without a loss.

Indians Capture Thriller

Hemsley Singles With Bases Loaded in 9th.

CLEVELAND — (AP)—The Cleveland Indians are four and a half games ahead in the American league race today principally because they are winning the close ones.

* * *

Their 11th consecutive victory yesterday was another photo finish, Rollie Hemsley's single with two out and the bases filled in the ninth inning driving home the winning run in a 2 to 1 decision over Washington.

* * *

Of 16 Cleveland triumphs, four have been by one-run margins and four by two runs.

Bob Feller limited the Senators to three hits in posting his fifth victory and his third by a 2 to 1 score. He fanned 12 batters and succeeded in keeping seven walks scattered well enough to avoid serious trouble.

Ken Keltner's bobble of a ground ball gave Washington its run in the third. Doc Cramer doubled off the right field wall to start the rally and scampered to third on a long fly to center field. Feller got Buddy Lewis on strikes, but Cramer came in as Cecil Travis' grounder bounced away from Keltner.

* * *

Lou Boudreau's home run in the seventh tied up the game. The Nats started fast the next inning on a long double to left center by Lewis, but Boudreau's perfect relay of Jeff Heath's throw nipped Buddy at third as he tried to stretch the hit.

* * *

Southpaw Ken Chase started his own downfall in the ninth by walking Boudreau, the first batter. Lewis then threw wild on Hal Trosky's bunt and both runners were safe. Heath sacrificed and Beau Bell was passed purposely. Ray Mack lifted a short fly to Cramer before Hemsley, working the count to three and two, slashed the ball into left field.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh called on Jimmy Bagby to run the victory string to a dozen and the former Boston pitcher drew Dutch Leonard, knuckle-baller, as an opponent.

The Tribal pilot stuck to his choices of the club's southpaw Als. Milnar and Smith, to face the Yankees in games here tomorrow and Thursday.

The Indians leave Thursday night on a 14-day trip.

CHAPTER XI

Raye's conscience insisted upon asserting itself now and she tried to fight it off. Lacerating doubts about the soundness of her decision to have and to hold Hal Bedford, in spite of anything, continued to taunt her.

Exasperated, she flung around to the wavy mirror on her bathroom door and gave herself final inspection.

"Yes, you look like a million," she conceded blithely. "You should be able to take what you want—take it and keep it. You really look—desirable."

The navy suit she was wearing, the crazy little blue straw hat holding blue silk pansies, made her appealingly childlike. The cream-colored blouse, with its blue ribbon bow under her chin, was decidedly flattering to her eager blue eyes. Probably her good points were her tanned skin and soft curving mouth — her small head, fine wrists and ankles, the delicate arch of her neck. Her blond hair wasn't so bad, either. And some men had admired that resolute little chin.

Anyway, tonight the ensemble of sparkling personality and simple grooming was effective and it should stir those romantic impulses in Hal that Ruthie had stressed. It hadn't been smart of Ruthie to give her rival the idea of appealing to Hal's zest for romance!

But the way she was feeling now, any game was fair that could keep Hal's love for herself alive, thought Raye defiantly. And if she couldn't get over her silly compassion for Ruthie, it would be just too bad

Somehow she could not, even when constantly prodded by her protesting conscience, decide to relinquish Hal Bedford. If Ruthie were less of a little sap, she might consider giving him back to her. But Hal would always be miserable with Ruthie — anyone could see that. Hal needed love, not Ruthie's silly possessiveness. He needed sympathetic companionship — Hal needed everything she could give him. Hal needed—her.

* * *

Then the telephone rang again and Hal, surprisingly, did not need her at all this evening. Raye's spirits sank to nothing.

"I'll see you later in the week, darling," he said, sounding hurried, worried and remote.

Raye voiced no protest She had long since learned that men abhor being glued to women. They liked to feel free to pick and choose; they soon tired of any woman who attempted to own them exclusively. Even after marriage some men occasionally had to reassure themselves by word or deed that their liberty was still intact, or go completely haywire.

Raye could not bring herself to think of spending the evening alone in this dreary apartment with its musty odor of old carpets and fanciful ghosts of an ill-assorted lot of former tenants. Fortunately, however, she could not foresee what this night was to bring forth; fortunately, she could not know it was to be a night she was destined never wholly to forget. She was so thoroughly dejected now that she was ready to crush her tormenting doubts with any lively companionship within reach.

So this was why Rex Maine found himself, much to his delight, taking out his future office girl. Raye, floundering in a mire of despair, had called him up and retracted her recent refusal to dine with him.

She was determined to be where there was music, laughter, gayety; to be surrounded by things trivial and capricious; to be in a place where she could bury the gnawing anxiety in her heart. Her interest in Hal seemed as baffling as a boomerang now Certainly, it had come back to her like one.

"It's actually flooring me!" she declared to herself, in surprise.

In the old days, it had been Raye Stone who broke dates at will Never her admirers.

* * *

She wondered, on a little edge of consternation, if being plain Raye Stone, without the background of unlimited wealth, was already beginning to tell in certain quarters. Even Hal — had Hal Bedford been out to acquire more money than he already possessed? She wondered. She wondered until it hurt, then tried to stop wondering

Rex took her to an exquisitely appointed restaurant which recently had been opened in the heart of the city. Raye laughed and sparkled all for him—apparently. She knew she would have to pay for it later—he'd be sure to propose for the twentieth time —and she would have to watch him suffer when she said no.

But if she didn't stay up to this high pitch, she'd be flat as a pancake in no time. Some man had to take the brunt of her hopelessness, she contended, and it happened to be poor Rex.

Violins sang tenderly, piccolos laughed through basses, saxophones and drums, and Rex danced repeatedly with Raye. He carried his heavy-set figure of medium height well and he was exceptionally light on his feet; his large brown eyes and ready smile over even teeth, were surprisingly attractive. He was about thirty-five and his dark brown hair was just turning gray at the temples. He looked as if he had been poured into the dark blue suit he was wearing and no woman, thought Raye, could ever feel ashamed to be out with so poised and cultured a man.

* * *

Raye had heard that he had been divorced a couple of times, but, even so, he was splendid company and she was sorry she couldn't go a little mad over him Especially tonight. It would so easily solve at least one of her aggravating problems.

They dined well on split pea soup, baked swordfish and roast chicken, accompanied by creamed potatoes, eggplant, asparagus and fresh green salad. They munched assorted pastry, and sipped coffee and liquors, discussing trivial things, with Rex heroically refraining from making verbal love to her.

But what was in his nice brown eyes was a different matter. Raye saw, understood and passed it by, while admiring him more than she ever had before.

Now and then they nodded to acquaintances, but for a long time none of their own crowd came into the restaurant.

Then abruptly the place seemed to swarm with them.

There was Rosalind Grinner with Bill Anderson. And there was Hal Bedford — with Lydia Edison!

Raye's heart lost a beat, then began to hammer violently. Her eyes swam with hurt surprise.

* * *

Why was Hal with the coolly calculating Lydia? What did it signify?

Lydia Edison was a slim, willowly woman of twenty-eight, a woman of experience far beyond her years and altogether too easy on the eyes She was living with her father's well-to-do widowed cousin, Mrs Grace Hodden, who, because of the girl's lax conformity to established social customs, merely tolerated her But Mrs. Hodden was loyal to her family and felt obliged to take Lydia in and give her a comfortable home Few of Lydia's associates often agreed with her very elastic ideas, however, and even Raye, as modern as she thought herself, was sometimes astonished at Lydia's ways with men.

Yet there was nothing tangible to point out in Lydia's behavior and, although her women friends surmised much, they never could truthfully accuse Lydia of impeachable conduct. What the men thought, they apparently kept to themselves, so if an eyebrow were occasionally lifted in Lydia's direction, it might mean a great deal or next to nothing.

But to the majority of her acquaintances, Lydia was an enigma She had come to Wilville five years ago from England, where she had lived with another relative of whom she spoke but vaguely. If Lydia dared to say and do various things irritating to other women, they accepted her because of Mrs Hodden, an eminently respectable, lifelong resident of Wilville.

Now, Lydia's platinum blond head was close to Hal's, her black net skirt rippling magnetically about her slimness as they waltzed past the orchestra stand.

Over Lydia's shoulders, Hal's feverish eyes abruptly picked out Raye, sitting with Rex at a nearby table

The two couples exchanged brief, outwardly cordial smiles. But Raye wondered if the tension she felt in the air was being experienced by the other three.

"Hal loses no time in getting around," remarked Rex, a trifle caustically. 'Ruthie left town this afternoon."

Raye felt color flood her cheeks. She was grateful for the soft candlelight and the secluded corner they were in

She reached out and untangled a red rose from a white gardenia in the centerpiece between them, avoiding Rex's searching gaze She picked up a red, white and blue menu card, laid it down.

"Fine American spirit in this new restaurant," she said irrelevantly.

"Cigarets, cigars?" invited a cute little person, wearing crimson and white striped blouse and blue breeches, her shapely legs startling in long red silk hose.

Rex's bronze-tipped lashes long and silky enough for a girl, lifted from his wide brown eyes.

"Hurrah for the red, white and blue!" he sang out, grinning.

He selected an expensive brand of cigarets from the smiling girl's American flag-draped basket, gave her a bill and turned back to Raye

SHELBY POLICE REFUSED PAY RESTORATION

City Council Turns Down Request For $15 Monthly Salary Increase.

SHELBY—City patrolmen here were refused a wage restoration of $10 a month by council at its regular semi-monthly meeting last night at city hall.

Five patrolmen petitioned council to restore their wages to $150 a month. Patrolmen were given a cut several years ago. Part of this was restored to them but they are still working for $10 a month less than had been paid before the cut was taken.

The petition was read by Mayor W. R. Morris. It included the signature of Police Chief Leroy C. Coffey, who was not asking for a rei . but was supporting the restoration for the patrolmen.

The increase in police salaries would have amounted to $600 a year, but Finance Director Chester P. Monn told council that funds were not available to meet the additional expense. He pointed out that police had not included the wage restoration in the figures given to him when he set up the annual appropriation.

Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger said he favored giving the patrolmen a wage cut unless the department is conducted more efficiently. Council has contended for some time that police here were spending too much money for the results they were getting.

The patrolmen here are getting a monthly salary of $140 which is $15 a month higher than paid in the fire department. Council recently passed an ordinance setting up a wage scale for both departments which was protested by Police Chief Leroy Coffey and Fire Chief Eugene Schull who thought that a higher scale should be set with business improving.

Since the scale was adopted y council one fireman resigned to accept a better paying job in private industry. Firemen receive a top pay of $125 a month.

Police have pointed out that a number of surrounding cities have given patrolmen raises as well as giving them shorter hours.

An ordinance requiring governors on food trucks was tabled on a motion made by Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger and seconded by Councilman John Chew. The ordinance was up for its third reading when tabled.

Council also received and filed petitions asking for the annexation of 11.64 acres of land in Jackson township to the city and for curb and gutter improvements for the west end of Auburn street.

STEELS LEADING COME-BACK ON MARKET TODAY

Favorites Climb From Fraction To More Than a Point as Bonds Tilt Upward.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steels led the stock market on a come-back today that put many favorites up fractions to more than a point.

Among shares edging into new high ground for the year were Standard Oils of Indiana, New Jersey and California, Nickel Plate Preferred and Pere Marquette Preferreds.

Bonds again tilted higher, along with major commodities.

Brokers attributed much of the early bidding to the belief of technical forces that recent selling had been overdone.

Boardrooms saw a constructive sign in the statement of Federal Reserve Members banks in 101 cities for the week ended April 30 disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture had resumed the upswing.

Encouragement also was derived from preliminary estimates of department stores which placed retail spending during April at the highest level since 1930.

BIRD EXPECTED TO BE NAMED

Colonel Will Get Job Forming State Guard After Release.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Only a release from the army stands between Col. Whittier S. Bird, chief of staff of the 37th division, Ohio national guard, and appointment by Gov. John W. Bricker as adjutant general of Ohio, informed sources said today.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commander of the 37th, now in federal training at Camp Shelby, Miss., was said to have asked the war department to release Colonel Bird so that he may accept the post now filled temporarily by Acting Adj. Gen. R. B. Lee of Toledo.

The new adjutant general will have the task of forming a new state guard and state naval militia under legislation enacted last week. He and a guard commander, yet to be appointed, will work together on details of the organization.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Passing a resolution which would ban the widely publicized Rugg text books from the school system today was before East Cleveland educational leaders, following a heated two and one-half hour hearing on religious instruction for the suburb schools.

The Rugg books which have been used in social science class throughout the country are the works of Dr. Harold O. Rugg of Columbia university, who has been persona non grata to American Legion posts and certain manufacturing groups for some of his statements on advertising, democracy and liberty.

The resolution, passed last night by the East Cleveland board of education, will receive a hearing at a public meeting at Shaw high school, May 19.

Chios islands in the Aegean sea, only 10 miles from the Turkish mainland.

The Italians announced occupation of six islands in the Kykladon (Cyclades) group, adjoining Italy's Dodecanese archipelago in the southern waters of the Aegean—the isles of Anaphe, Ios, Thera, Naxos, Amorgos and Paros.

Premier Mussolini's high command said a new British attempt to break through Axis forces in the month-old siege of Tobruk, Libya, was repulsed "thanks to prompt action by valorous Italian and German troops, who inflicted extremely grave losses on the enemy."

This may have been the same action described yesterday by the British middle east command, which said counter-attacking British troops had smashed Axis preparations for a big attack on the fortress.

"On the Salum front (in Egypt), an enemy tank thrust was repulsed," the Italian communique declared.

In the critical Near East situation, a decisive battle for control of Iraq's rich oil reservoirs appeared inevitable after both the British and Iraqi were reported to have rejected a Turkish offer of mediation and an Egyptian appeal for a peaceful settlement.

British troops still held Habbaniyah airport and Basra harbor, but the Iraqi already have cut the oil pipeline to Haifa.

Turkey's offer to act as go-between in the conflict at her southeastern border elicited a British statement that the "friendly motives" of the Turkish government were appreciated, but that withdrawal of Iraqi troops from the siege of Habbaniyah was "an essential prerequisite" to negotiations.

At the same time the Berlin radio relayed a reported Baghdad broadcast stating that Iraq would not talk mediation until British troops left the kingdom.

In London the Daily Herald, Laborite newspaper, described the diplomatic prelude to the Iraq trouble as "the latest example of inadequate British methods" and said there had been "either complacency or incompetence somewhere."

In the United States, it was reported in Washington that an embargo had been imposed on all exports to Soviet Russia of machine tools or mechanical equipment usable in defense production.

The new policy will prevent shipment of some machinery ordered and paid for by the Russians months ago, it was said.

In the Far East, Japan and French Indo-China signed a trade agreement, culminating talks begun last December.

Reveal Bombing of Grecian Vessels

CANEA, Crete — (AP) — The Greek government, recapitulating the fate of its navy in the last days of the German drive through Greece, said today that all its auxiliary vessels—more than 30—had been "savagely bombed and machine-gunned, sinking with the crews."

These ships included minelayers, patrol and escort vessels.

Greece's submarines were said to have reached Alexandria, Egypt, where they joined the British fleet.

"Of the 10 destroyers, three were sunk, firing to the last against dozens of German bombers," the statement said.

Two of Greece's 13 torpedoboats also were said to have reached Alexandria.

The hospital ships Hesperos, Policos, Attiki, Socrates and Hellenis were sunk, the statement said, "although they were unarmed and were carrying full lights and bearing signs stipulated by the international Red Cross.

"Survivors struggling in the sea were pitilessly machine-gunned. The case of one was particularly flagrant as she carried women and children.

"There were few survivors of all the Greek coastal fleet. Only six freighters which were far from ports were saved."

RAF Bombs Bengasi, Axis Airfields

CAIRO, Egypt—(AP)—Bengasi harbor and the airdrome at nearby Benina as well as German-Italian landing fields at Barce, Derna and Gazala, all in Libya, were the targets for a "very heavy bombing attack" by the RAF, it was announced today.

At least five Axis planes, including one or more large troop carriers, were destroyed at Benina, said the RAF communique, apparently covering operations yesterday.

Haile Selassie Back In Ancient Capital

ADDIS ABABA — (INS) — Once again ruler of the kingdom from which Italian arms ejected him five years ago, Emperor Haile Selassie entered Addis Ababa this afternoon to remount his throne in this ancient capital.

The slight-figured, bearded emperor, titled "King of Kings and Lion of Judah," made a triumphal entry into this sun-baked city on the Ethiopian plain.

Tribesmen turned out in the hundreds to welcome him back as he came into Addis Ababa at the head of British troops and Ethiopian warriors who has bested the Italians in every theater of Abyssinian war and finally returned him to his heritage.

General Sir George Cunningham, commander of British troops in Central Africa, headed a welcoming committee. Also present was Crown Prince Harar, eldest son of Haile Selassie, who led the revolt of Ethiopian tribesmen against the Italians.

Haile Selassie went immediately to his three-storied "palace" just off the main street of Addis Ababa, occupied until a few months ago by Italian officers.

AIRPLANE PARTS STRIKE CALLED

Picket Lines Placed Around Three Detroit Plants.

DETROIT —(INS)— The UAW-CIO today called a strike among 3,500 workers at the three plants of the Ex-Cello-O corporation, which has been manufacturing airplane parts and machine tools for use in armament plants.

Picket lines surrounded the three plants but police reported that there was no violence. The strike was called after the membership of UAW-CIO Local 157 rejected a proposed settlement negotiated by William Stevenson, local president, and a committee of union representatives.

The union is demanding a ten cent an hour wage increase and union recognition.

EDEN BEGINS DEBATE ON WAR

which Yugoslav armies had been mobilized.

"The United States," said Eden, "is today helping us greatly in many spheres and many ways. The more fully, the more rapidly, the more certainly that help can reach the battlefields in Asia, Africa and Europe, the shorter will be the duration of the war."

Moyne admitted that the British had lost material in Greece.

"It is true," he said, "that we lost material in Greece for we only were able to evacuate light equipment and had to destroy our heavy armaments but meanwhile larger quantities than we lost had time to arrive at Red Sea ports.

"With the ever increasing help from America we are hoping to send more and more support to the battle of the middle east on which the Axis seems to be staking so much."

Moyne placed British casualties in the "eastern theater" at not more than 11,500, most of which were troops cut off from re-embarkation from Greece. He put Italian losses in Africa at 380,000 white and native troops including 200,000 prisoners.

German losses in Greece, he asserted, were far heavier than "the ridiculous estimates" of Adolf Hitler.

Discussing Britain's position in the middle east, Eden said:

1—Britain is completely confident of Turkey's loyalty to her alliance with Britain.

2—Britain will not negotiate with Iraq until and unless Iraqi troops are withdrawn around Habbaniyah and hostilities cease.

3—Britain will insist upon her rights under the Anglo-Iraq treaty to maintain troops in Iraq for defense of the Mosul oil fields.

4—An Axis victory in the middle east would mean ruthless domination of the Arab world by Italy.

Eden appealed to the Arabs not to align themselves with the Axis.

"No people has more reason to fear an Axis victory than those who dwell in the Arab lands," Eden said.

Coast pirates in the early years of the last century, and to the gangsters of the Dillinger days.

The suggestion of bombers and "volunteer" fliers for China was prefaced by the assertion that the time had come "to give some plain talk and if necessary some plain action to Japan."

"We know that the little yellow men are waiting behind the door with a drawn dagger to stab us when we become involved with another foe," Pepper said.

"We should take the initiative. I believe a few American pilots in first class bombing planes could make a shambles out of Tokyo.

"If the Japanese get a sample in their capital of what they did to China, . . . they may lose some of their blood thirstiness.

Declaring he stood for "a policy of realism," the Florida senator asserted that "we have been paralyzed for a month because the administration and the congress have not dared to face issues squarely and decide them.

"The government has ceased to lead the people of America, and where there is no leadership the people perish."

Pepper saw two things that the world "needs to know" from the United States.:

"That America is determined that tyranny shall die and that when we have saved liberty we shall help to nurture it to maturity in all the world.

"If men ask our motives, we shall say that we are determined that international bandits shall be dealt with hereafter like we dealt with the cattle thieves of a generation ago."

G.O.P. Fails to Get Vote On Convoys

WASHINGTON —(AP)— House Republicans sought and failed today to force an immediate vote on the question of whether the United States should convoy shipments of supplies to Great Britain.

Rep. Bradley (R. Mich.) said that he and others had planned to offer an "anti-convoy" admentment to a pending bill which would authorize President Roosevelt to take over idle foreign-flag tonnage for national defense but had been informed that a parliamentary technicality blocked their attempt.

Nevertheless, the convoy question remained uppermost in debate on the bill to permit diversion to commerce and defense purposes of 83 foreign ships, including 2 German and 26 Italian vessels. Republicans contended that the possible transfer of the Axis vessels to Great Britain would constitute "a clear act of war."

To avoid such a step, they decided to sponsor a provision which said that such flagships "shall not be turned over to any nation now at war or used for the purpose of promoting their objectives."

Democratic leaders, publicly asserting that disposition of the president, predicted that the amendment would be defeated and that by nightfall the measure would be sped to the senate—where another fight was brewing.

Three Democrats spoke out forthrightly on the convoy question during yesterday's debate as Rep. Fish (R. N. Y.) attributed to the president the statement that convoys would mean shooting and shooting would mean war.

Rep. Cox (D. Ga.) told the house, "of course we're going to convoy, and convoy right away."

Chairman Vinson (D. Ga.) of the naval committee said that "if convoys are needed, let's have convoys"; Rep. Patrick (D. Ala.) remarked, "I think we should begin immediately to convoy."

U. S. TO BUILD 20,000 WAR PLANES BY DECEMBER, REPORT

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—An analysis of figures compiled by the office of production management indicated today that American industry should turn out a total of 20,000 military planes by December.

That figure, which OPM spokesmen branded as "a conservative estimate," would exceed by 2,000 the year's airplane quota—18,000—set last February by OPM Director General William S. Knudsen.

The prediction was based on the steady production increase since last December. During that month the OPM announced that a total of 799 military and commercial planes were produced in American factories.

During January of this year, monthly production jumped to 1,036, but dropped back during the short month of February to a total of 972. In March, however, it rose again to 1,216, and the most recent figure released was 1,427—all military ships—for April.

Thus, OPM figures for the first four months of the year disclosed that America's geared-up factories turned out a total of 4,651 planes of all types for the army, navy and Great Britain.

It was pointed out that with new plants and facilities being added rapidly, a steady rate of increase should boost the monthly production rate to at least 2,800 or possibly 3,000 by December or January of next year.

Previously Knudsen expressed the hope that monthly production should reach the 3,300 mark by June, 1942.

step up heavy bomber production under a hard-boiled system of priorities resulted directly from the data returned to this country by Arnold. The program is reported to be for an eventual goal of 500 bombers a month.

Automobile production, already initially reduced by 20.15 per cent to make way for munitions, now is expected to be curtailed again. The United Press was informed that facilities for engine manufacture were especially needed and that the automobile industry might be called on further for that purpose.

It is understood that Mr. Roosevelt's expanded bomber production program will be carried out in part at least in the new $1,500,000,000 munitions plant project being developed by the war department. It will provide for at least two new assembly plants for big bombers and four new engine assembly plants and, also, for expansion of existing facilities.

The emergency bomber order was revealed last night in a letter addressed by Mr. Roosevelt to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson asserting that defense of the United States and other democracies "requires that there be a substantial increase in heavy bomber production."

He submitted to Stimson, Secretary of Navy Frank Knox and to William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman off the office for production management a private memorandum fixing the production rate to be achieved under the new program.

Wines Are Both 'Sweet' and 'Dry' Professors Say

SACRAMENTO, Cal. —(INS)— Wines have been either "sweet" or "dry" for centuries, but now the public contends they are both, thereby adding to the confusion.

Drs. M. A Amerine and M. A. Joslyn of the University of California asked the wine-drinking public and found that the so-called dry wines with alcoholic content of 14 per cent or less, sometimes are sweet to the taste; sweet wines containing 21 per cent alcohol or less are sometimes dry to the taste.

"These terms have been rejected for legal use and their use is being discouraged by the wine industry," they said. "Instead, wines produced by natural fermentation are now known as either 'table, light, natural, or dinner wines.'"

Wines with alcoholic content of more than 21 per cent are known as brandies and can be either dry or sweet, depending upon the sugar content.

BEWARE OF WORMS

Inside you or your child

Do you know that roundworms can cause great distress? And they are so easy to "catch" that thousands of grown-ups and children have these bowel worms without even recognizing the symptoms.

So watch out for these signs: Fidgeting itchy nose and seat, uneasy stomach, restless sleep. If you even suspect roundworms get Jayne's Vermifuge to drive them out before they can "get set" and cause trouble.

Jayne's is America's leading proprietary worm medicine; used by millions, for over a century. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. When no worms are there, it works just as a mild laxative. Play safe! Ask for Jayne's Vermifuge! At all drug stores.

MANSFEILD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1941.

As to that proposed "cooling off" period—why get all heated up in the first place?

History repeats—and Calvin Coolidge's thrift ideas have again become a governmental preachment.

If Hitler had been reared in the American environment he would probably have become no more important than John Dillinger.

Crucial Stage of Fund Campaign

NOW COMES the time for final effort in putting the Community Fund campaign "over the top" within the time allotted.

For more than a week three hundred Mansfield men and women have been making liberal contribution of time and effort to the canvass for funds needed to carry the work of eleven essential community agencies through another year.

Giving time from their own job, profession, business or other duties, these active campaign workers also contribute money to the extent of their ability.

Subscriptions to date have reached a satisfactory total, but it appears that the final several thousand dollars are always the hardest to get and the work of rounding out the quota has sometimes gone several days beyond the closing date.

It seems unfair that these several hundred volunteer workers should have imposed upon them the task of continuing solicitation after the time set to close the campaign—which is tomorrow night.

Maintenance of the agencies which participate in the Community Fund is an obligation which rests upon all persons who are so fortunate as to be able to make a small or large contribution. There should be no need for urging.

Bus Strike Discloses Need

ASSURED regularity of service is so essential to any transportation system that even a short-lived strike of bus company employes, such as has just been affecting a number of eastern states, has more serious potentialities than may be generally realized.

Experience of the past few days, in the matter of public inconvenience and disarranged travel schedules, will at least serve to emphasize the importance of developing arbitration methods applicable to bus service employment, similar to those by which interruption of railroad service has been prevented for a number of years.

While bus transportation may still be regarded as a newcomer in the transportation field it has enjoyed a considerable growth and expansion of service during the past decade —comparable to the development of its predecessor, the interurban railway.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that just twenty years ago, during the period of interurban obsolescence, operation of those lines was being hampered by strikes and strike threats which served to destroy public confidence in their dependability.

Without entering into controversial matters involved in the strike of bus company employes, but pointing only to the futile last-minute effort to rescind the strike order, it does appear that the interests of all parties concerned — employes, employers and bus travelers — would be better served by less precipitate suspension of operating schedules.

Get a Little Hobby of Your Own

OPENING this afternoon and continuing through Sunday, the Buckeye Hobby club's third annual show will attract thousands of Mansfield and vicinity visitors to the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., where more than one hundred hobby exhibits have been arranged for public inspection.

While hobby enthusiasts may represent a comparatively small percentage of population total, interest in hobby collections is widespread and new devotees are constantly being added to the ranks of ardent hobbyists.

It may be doubted if any avocation adds more to the joy of living than that of cultivating a hobby of some sort—no matter what it is, just so it diverts attention from workaday routine.

So, young or old, go to the hobby show this week—see what others have done in following their particular hobby—and maybe you'll be inspired to get a little hobby of your own.

Those Destructive Forest Fires

FOREST fires are still raging in the eastern part of the country. In New York state the head of the conservation department said the situation was at its worst at the end of April and that nothing but a drenching rain could save about 40,000,000 seedlings and small trees at the state nursery.

In Massachusetts, after nearly 100 square miles of forest had been blackened and 20 cottages burned to the ground near Groton, shifting and increasing winds caused new fires to break out again in five places. Other areas—both forests and towns—were menaced in other parts of New England.

According to a recent estimate of the U. S. forest service, fire loss in the northeastern states already amounted to about $3,000,000. More than 5,000 fires, extending from Kentucky to Maine, were fought between April 14 and 23, and new fires were still developing after that. Fifty thousand fire-fighters were called out in that period, including men from army training camps.

Prolonged, soaking rains would end the immediate danger, but even without them there is something human beings should do. Most of these fires were caused in the first place by careless persons. Grass and brush fires were allowed to get out of control, or burning matches were dropped among dry leaves. There have been other preventable causes of this tremendous waste. If it is to be an abnormally dry year, as it has been a dry spring, there must be unusually careful observance of fire-prevention rules.

It is mentioned that one of the right-hand boys in the treasury department bears the name of John L. Sullivan—but it may be said, for the benefit of those who haven't kept up with their reading, that he isn't the original.

Now that President Roosevelt has expressed his views as to Charles A. Lindbergh it may be wondered what he thinks about Harry Bridges.

Toledo Blade's Jack Warwick thinks: "If we smoked we might care a little for what the tobacco auctioneer says by radio." You wouldn't.

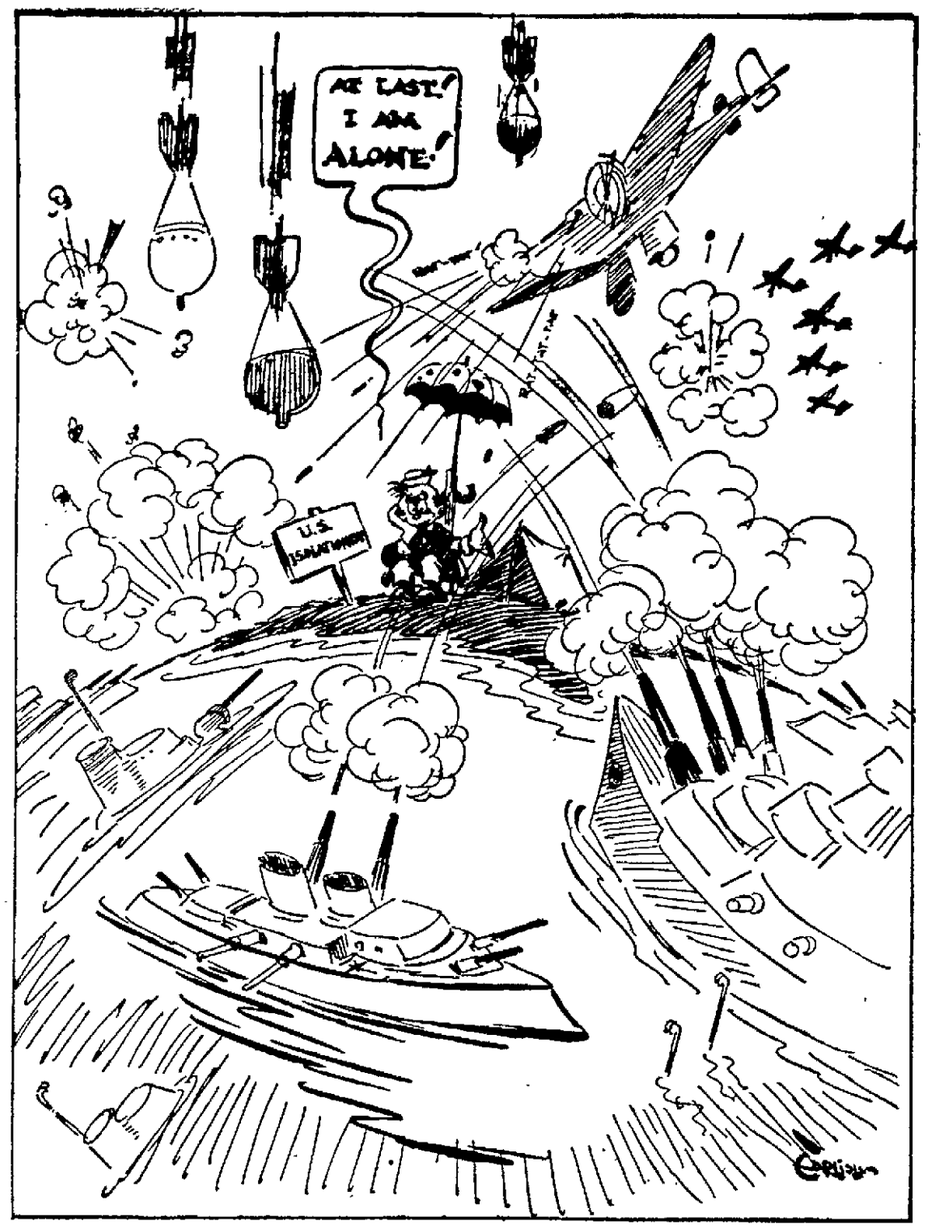
THE ISOLATIONIST'S DREAM



Listen World!

No Crime to Be Rich

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

MR. ORSON WELLES may be a smart young man. But in my simple, motherly opinion he deserves a swift kick in the pants. And a Dies Committee investigation. Which isn't half what I think—but it's all the editor will let me print.

The occasion for this blast is a Welles film recently released by an outfit which uses its American freedom to give our dumb democracy one of the worst wallops in its history.

Yes, I said "dumb." And I mean "dumb." If they had the sense God gave a gooseberry, every person who attends that smearario would get out his pea-shooter and head straight for Orson. For, whether they know it or not, they've all been insulted right where they live and get their breaks in the Constitution of these United States.

The plot of Mr. Welles' latest opus is already well-known. Just like measles. It is so simple, little Jimmy could play it on his harmonica. And just about as subtle. In short, it pretends to give the life story of a Very Rich Man. Just rich. That's all. Nothing more.

But, of course, as an inciter to riots, arson and mayhem in these troubled times, that's enough. As the clever Mr. Orson Welles well knew, though I've yet to hear that he himself is starving on a soda biscuit.

So the Guy gets rich. And the lights go out. And the Great American Populace promptly wends its way home hating his insides and hoping to get hunk. Such is the essence of the Welles inflamer. And if any ragged alien pulled as raw a piece of sabotage we'd have him under protective custody within an hour. For, frankly, this film says:

IT IS A CRIME TO GET RICH AMERICA.

IT IS A CRIME TO USE YOUR BRAIN OR POWER IN SUCH A WAY THAT MANY MEN AND WOMEN, INCLUDING YOURSELF, MAY PROFIT BY AND SHARE YOUR GOOD FORTUNE.

IT IS A CRIME TO HAVE PRIVATE AMBITION OR RUN A PRIVATE ENTERPRISE. AND ANYONE WHO IS THAT WAY OUGHTTA GET THE WORKS.

All of which is as direct a blow at our American institutions as a time bomb. (On which institutions, may I again add, Friend Orson is doing plenty well by O. W.)

This sort of thing is the most vicious form of sabotage, not because it attacks Rich Men, who can well stand it, but because it exploits, confuses and cashes in on mob ignorance and envy, particularly at a time of great national emergency.

It takes the very principles which have made this country the strongest and fairest land on earth and turns them into objects of hatred.

It kicks Democracy in the teeth.

The simple truth is—IT IS NOT A CRIME TO BE RICH IN AMERICA. It's a swell break and we'd all like to share it. You want to be rich. So do I, only some one always gets me to sign their note before I can endorse my check.

However, it takes more than a political program for people to get rich. It takes something above the ears that few of us possess or could utilize, even if we were born with a billion. So the great majority of us are, and probably always will be, dependent on some fellow with a bigger and better Go-getiem Urge.

And that's where Democracy comes in. It makes us all our brothers' keepers, whether we like it or not. By way of taxes, it throws a diamond hitch over human selfishness and keeps it within bounds, as Old World tyranny could never do. And it gives the weak and stupid and underprivileged the most decent break they've ever had in history.

Which is jake by me! And, personally, I'm tickled pink to dig down to my last dime to keep the system going. I'm not saying it is a perfect system. And I'm the one who knows it—and carries the scars. There's unkindness in it, and unfairness, and corruption. And there will continue to be until human beings are born with feathers on their shoulder blades.

But with all its weakness, democracy is the tallest dream men ever had of human relationship. . . . The widest vision of human decency.

And the man who cheapens its principle at a time like this, or distorts its purpose to confuse muddled minds—whether by bomb or gun, poisonous propaganda or furtive film—is a total loss to me. And nothing else but.

I salute your trick beard, Senor! Now run along and munch your caviar.

ELSIE ROBINSON.

Timely Editorial

Aided By Alumnus.

The academic world has good reason to envy, and all its friends to congratulate, Wooster college for its good fortune in having been willed nearly $1,500,00 by its late alumnus and trustee, Birton E. Babcock. Such bequests are few in these days of heavy taxes, and will be even fewer as the financial demands of the government increase.

Mr. Babcock's rise to wealth, in fact, followed a pattern which rapidly is fading from the American scene. Born in Clyde, O., and graduated from Wooster in 1894, he made his living for a while as a school teacher, then went to work in an Ohio sauerkraut factory. With this experience, he became secretary of the Empire State Pickling company in Canandaigua, N. Y., and rose to be its president and the man who built it into the world's largest sauerkraut plant.

His splendid bequest to his alma mater will help Wooster college, one of the finest institutions of its kind, weather the storm which we fear is approaching most of the smaller liberal arts colleges.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One-Minute Test.

1. Is there any difference between an epoch and an era?
2. What is the meaning of the insignia, the lone pine in the desert, worn by members of the Travelers' Aid society?
3. In politics, what is meant by "The Old Guard"?

Words of Wisdom.

It is not what people eat, but what they digest, that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they save, that makes them rich. It is not what they read, but what they remember, that makes them learned.

Hints on Etiquette.

If you are unavoidably delayed in keeping an engagement and are late, be sure to express sincere regret for keeping the other party waiting.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. The terms are usually used synonymously. Some, however, distinguish between them by claiming that an era is an epoch which is chronologically dated from: an epoch not being marked in that way.
2. It symbolizes rest and relief to weary or lost travelers.
3. In the United States it refers to the conservative or stand pat element in the Republican party.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Plan Huge Increase of Air Force, Many More Big Bombers Needed

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—This is the third in the Merry-Go-Round series on defense production.)

WASHINGTON—Heavy conferences among army and defense chiefs on plans for another vast expansion of plane producing facilities are in progress behind the scenes.

If this seems surprising, since hundreds of millions already have been allocated for this purpose, the reason is clear when you examine the gigantic size of the industrial system required to build the 50,000 planes called for by President Roosevelt after the fall of France.

Between July 1, 1940 and March 1, 1941, just the floor space of the aviation industry expanded from 17,216,410 square feet to 31,383,967. In a few months four huge new bomber assembly plants, at Kansas City, Fort Worth, Tulsa and Omaha, fed with parts by scores of other factories, will add millions of additional square feet.

But even with all these assembly and parts plants in full operation, the total output of combat planes by the end of 1942 will still be far short of 50,000.

On order are 44,835 planes divided as follows: For Canada and the R.A.F.—16,000, plus 3,600 bombers under the so-called Knudsen plan; for the U. S. army—16,575, of which only half will be combat planes; for the navy—6,660, of which about one-fourth will be trainer planes.

Thus it will be seen that of the 23,235 planes the army and navy are scheduled to receive in the next 18 months, only around 14,000 will be actual fighting ships. The rest will be trainers.

That is why defense authorities are preparing to erect two, possibly four, more bomber assembly plants, also to expand existing plane and motor factories and to farm out orders for propellers and other parts to scores of plants not now engaged in defense work.

* * *

Bombers to the Fore.

WAR developments have brought bombers, particularly of the long range type carrying great weight, to the fore as the major need of both our army and the British.

In April our bomber output was about one-sixth of the total number of planes produced—approximately 250 out of 1,375. This was about 50 more than in March and the number will mount monthly. By September production is scheduled to top 500 a month, and thereafter should step up another 300 per month as the four assembly plants swing into full operation.

This year's total U. S. plane output, it is estimated, will be 18,000, or about three times the number in 1940. For 1942, production is now guessed at 30,000, but experts are confident that figure will be considerably exceeded under the plant expansion plans now being quietly formulated.

In any event, by July of next year we should be turning out a minimum of 2,400 planes a month. Military experts believe Germany's plane capacity is greater than this now. The Nazis are not necessarily producing more than 2,400 planes every month, but they have the plant facilities to do so.

It is known that the Germans are concentrating on new types; one a twin-engined fighter of 2750 horsepower, carrying eight guns, including cannon. Another is a new model of the Heinkel fighter, still another is a new four-motored ship of great range and weight-carrying capacity.

U. S. air experts are working on 16 different new models, several of them interceptors to combat night bombing, a devastating form of attack which none of the belligerents has yet been able to lick.

Hidden Colleague.

A STOCKY, gray-haired man, flanked by a group of sightseers, approached a Capitol policeman and asked directions to the office of Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Tucked away in an obscure corner on the north side of the Capitol where tourists never tread, Johnson's office is one of the hardest to find in the great structure.

"I'll do my best to explain how to get there," said the policeman. "Are you a tourist?"

"No," grinned the inquirer, "I'm the other senator from California, Sheridan Downey."

Mediterranean Key.

KEY to the fateful battle of the Mediterranean which is about to burst in full fury is not the Suez Canal, but Britain's great naval base at Alexandria, 125 miles west of the canal entrance.

It is the capture of Alexandria that the Nazis are after, for this would deprive the British of their key "bridgehead" in northern Africa and ensure Axis domination of the eastern Mediterranean. So in coming days, watch the war dispatches from Alexandria.

Actually, the Suez Canal itself has been of little value to the British for months. It went out of use as the so-called "life-line of the empire" when the Axis air attack that severely damaged the aircraft carrier Illustrious proved it was suicidal to attempt to convoy shipping through the long and narrow Mediterranean Sea.

Since then the Mediterranean has been a "no man's land" for all the belligerents. While 2,000 miles in length, its narrow width at certain places has made it extremely hazardous for both sides, and the British have been routing their shipping around the Cape of Good Hope for some time.

Loss of the Mediterranean would, of course, be a serious blow to the British; but it would by no means end the war or mean victory for the Axis. With her fleet intact, Britain would still be able to carry the fight to Hitler and Mussolini.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—First hand acquaintance with circuses dispels much of the laugh-clown-laugh fiction traditionally associated with the big top folk. Circus people are intrepid performers and faithful to their calling, but they have no illusions that the glamor of their spangles is good for any merchandise at the grocery store.

Just the other day Hubert Castle, an Enid, Okla., boy who has become one of the world's leading tightwire performers, spoke of his dream of acquiring a ranch down in Texas. "This," he said, "is no business to grow old in. Too many once-famous circus stars have died in poverty and obscurity. Just last winter Bird Millman, a wire performer of 25 years ago whose feats have hardly been equalled, died in Canyon City, Colo., almost alone, forgotten, and penniless.

* * *

NOT 50 feet away, as he spoke, stood a woman on the corner of 59th street at 8th avenue, selling souvenir whips to crowds moving towards the Garden entrance. Her voice was shrill and high. Two years ago she wouldn't have been shrill. Two years ago there would have been no fear, no wonder about tomorrow.

But there is fear now. Her name is Marion Waite. Two years ago she was famous, a favorite of the crowds who swarmed to the big top. Her husband was a whip artist. She stood in front of huzzahing crowds while her husband expertly flecked the ashes off her cigaret with a 70-foot bull whip. They were the famous Australian Waites. Today Billy Waite is in a sanitarium. Their savings have disappeared, and while the husband fights for his life, penniless, no longer famous despite the piles of press-clippings which attest to his greatness, his wife stands on street corners at the circus entrance, hawking souvenirs.

That is what Hubert Castle means when he says "This is no business to grow old in."

Yet, performers keep coming back year after year, suppressing their apprehension about the future. They'll quit next year, they think, and go into something else, something a little more secure. But, not one in a hundred do. Something always happens, and there's always tomorrow. Meanwhile, there's Hubert, the tightwire expert, who dreams of a ranch in Texas, and Marion, queen of the bull whips, who sells souvenirs on the street corners.

IT IS probably true that actors are more egotistical than producers, but you would never guess it by reading the names of Broadway's theaters. Only half a dozen are named for actors, but nearly twenty bear the names of producers. Those currently in use which are named for stars are the Ethel Barrymore, Maxine Elliott, the Booth and the Mansfield. Come to think of it, I don't know of a single movie theater named for a player.

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, and Leo Durocher, manager of the Dodgers, are bitter enemies in print and on the field, but at night they fraternize chummily over glasses of beer. They live at the same hotel.

It appears now that Ukulele Ike Edwards will have to join a musicians' union. Until now the lowly uke hasn't been regarded as a legitimate instrument. All this has been changed, and if Edwards wants to continue strumming his uke for the enjoyment of film fans, he will have to get himself a card.

Detroit needed a thorough purging. The culminations in the process are at hand. The lesson taught will be well and lastingly learned, we hope. Real Estate Board States Position.

Editor News-Journal:

On April 29th, the Mansfield Real Estate Board addressed a letter to council on the proposed tax levy for rehabilitating the Mansfield fire department. This letter was commented on by members of council and the News-Journal in a manner which shows that the attitude of the Real Estate Board was not thoroughly understood.

The Real Estate Board membership is composed of the most reputable brokers in real estate, and one of the purposes of this organization is to safeguard the money invested in real estate, whether it be a large factory building or the modest home of a small salaried employe.

In almost every election some proposal is made to increase the amount of taxes paid on real estate. Only by vigilance will this cost be held in check and real estate remain a profitable place for investment.

The proposal of the finance committee of council calls for a tax levy of one-half mill for five years. With a tax valuation now of fifty four million dollars this means twenty seven thousand dollars per year for five years or a total of one hundred and thirty five thousand dollars. With all of the new construction now going up this levy is almost certain to bring between one hundred fifty and two hundred thousand dollars. Is this amount necessary?

The position of the Real Estate Board is as follows:

It wants an adequate fire department with good equipment which will provide proper safety to all of the citizens.

It thinks council should set up a budget showing what equipment needs to be replaced, what new stations, if any, it plans to build and what the approximate cost of these items will be.

Knowing that any tax-spending body has a tendency to spend all of the money it can get, the Board wants to know if adequate protection can not be had for much less than the one hundred fifty or two hundred thousand dollars this levy will raise.

The taxpayer is being asked to provide this money and the Board feels that he is entitled to full information as to the amount necessary and how it will be spent. Then he can cast an intelligent vote.

The board also suggests that each year a reserve be set up out of the general funds for the replacement of equipment. This plan is fundamental in any business organization and the city of Mansfield would profit from a similar arrangement.

In conclusion, the Mansfield Real Estate Board favors the creation of a modern and adequate fire department, but it feels that the public is entitled to full information. It believes that the half-mill levy as proposed will produce much more than is necessary and that efficiency and economy will not result.

A levy based on actual needs fully explained to the public and financed by a rate which will provide sufficient funds to complete the program will have the support of the Real Estate Board.

Ensembles Hold Center of Stage

The ensemble holds the center of the spring sartorial stage and never was there a more practical fashion

Gay printed silks team with woolen coats to create the sort of an outfit that fits into any hour of the day, whether it be luncheon, cocktails or informal dining

Occasionally the coats have facings to match the frock but such a coat cannot be worn with other frocks More adaptable are the coats which simply match the background color of the print but use none of the silk as a trim

One ensemble introduced at a New York fashion showing featured a frock with a gunmetal background and a small print of shamrocks The coat was of gunmetal wool with two large bound button holes at the neckline through which a tie of the silk was drawn

Another interesting ensemble in the same show consisted of a coat of dark blue wool with three-quarter sleeves The print dress beneath was made with long full sleeves which formed a puff beneath the sleeve of the coat A jabot at the neck of the dress was fashioned so that it could be worn outside on the collarless coat

For another ensemble the print of the dress had been used for a large handkerchief which was tucked into a pocket placed just below the enbelted waist line of the coat

Girls' Attitude Toward Boys Is Sensible One

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Women's responsibility toward men begins pretty early in life, sometimes. Here's a young miss of 14, troubled and annoyed—yes, and rather seriously smitten for the time being, so far as her affections are concerned — who writes me a plaintive letter because she is asked to do too much in the way of policing her boy-friend.

"Tom spends a lot of time at my house," Alice B. confides. "His parents know this and approve of it because I've been well brought up. That is, in our family we've always done what our parents told us to do, or else!

"Tom's family is different. 'Modern,' if you know what I mean. The children call the parents by their first names and do what they please without consulting anybody. Now the father and mother are worried because Tom, who really is a dear, doesn't work at all and slips out of sight every evening. They are always telephoning me, asking me to influence Tom so he'll do his school work and go to bed at ten-thirty.

"But is it my job to do what they can't do themselves? I have to do my own school work, help my mother about the house and look after my baby sister. Wouldn't you think I'd like to enjoy myself in going to a movie with Tom or having him here for supper without always having to act as his guardian? Yet, of course, I don't want him to fail in school or in life. Why can't his parents control their own children? Pitiful, I call it."

Alice's view is pretty sound. You can't help feeling that both Tom and his parents know a good thing when they see it—namely, Alice. And that Alice herself, entangled in the situation by her fondness for an attractive boy, may have to keep right on being the actively good influence when what she wants and needs, poor, overworked child, is relaxation and a carefree good time with a responsible boy friend.

Alice's story is almost a burlesque of the situation often arising among men and women ten years or more older than these youngsters in their early 'teens. We've often seen a weak young man, spoiled by his parents, sensing the goodness and strength in a young woman of his own age and arousing in her a maternal feeling that leads her to marry him. But can the girl fill the place both of mother and wife? Usually not. Can she remake the spineless husband who has, so to speak, thrown himself on her shoulders? I've never seen a case where this miracle was accomplished.

While we are familiar with the sight of grown women attempting to play the good angel in regard to characterless men, to me it is a new idea that a 14-year-old girl should be asked to fill such a role and that the request should be made by a schoolboy's lackadaisical parents.

Nor am I sure that the girl could succeed effectively and permanently bracing the boy up. It may be a luxury for a vain and self-indulgent boy to feel that his parents and his sweetheart are vying with each other in their efforts to stiffen his spine, but I shouldn't be surprised if the spine remained rather limp after all.

So I hope that Alice isn't likely to take on this thankless job for life and that she will before long transfer her interest to some nice boy who hasn't been spoiled at home in his early boyhood and who is willing to handle his own burdens, perhaps also to help her with hers.

As for Tom, I should say the sooner he takes his own case in hand, the better.

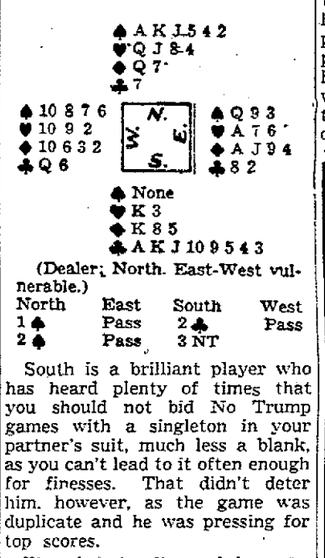
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

EASY TO GUESS WRONG

When you are up against an unorthodox type of bidder and player, who disregards many of the ordinarily sacred tenets of the game, it is up to you to keep your eyes and ears open, and not take anything for granted. Otherwise you may present him a lot of tricks which he really should have no chance to get.



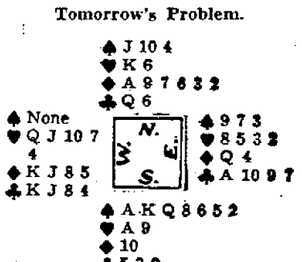
(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 NT

South is a brilliant player who has heard plenty of times that you should not bid No Trump games with a singleton in your partner's suit, much less a blank, as you can't lead to it often enough for finesses. That didn't deter him, however, as the game was duplicate and he was pressing for top scores.

West led the diamond 2 to the Q and A, and East returned the J to the K. Thereupon the declarer, C. E. Van Vleck, jr., ran eight consecutive club tricks. To create an illusion, he was careful not to discard any of the dummy's top three spades, throwing off hearts first. East decided he had better hold to his twice-guarded Q in spades, and West tried for a while to retain his four spades. They therefore got rid of plenty of hearts. Finally, on the last club, played to the tenth trick. East parted with his heart A. The heart K, heart 3 and diamond 8 were then good for the last three tricks, giving the declarer a total of 12 and top score on the deal.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If West leads the heart Q, how should South play this hand, at 4-Spades, in order to make the best possible score?

Make-Up Must Be Used Very Sparingly

(By MME. QUI VIVE)

The list of woman's beauty interests is as long as your arm. The svelte shape is the desire of every girl who isn't blessed with it. Neat ankles are more precious than jewels, a pretty arm is an object of admiration, lovely hands have appeal. A flair for wearing clothes beautifully, plus elegant carriage, has put many a woman into the beauty chorus. Yet the two chief ambitions have to do with the hair and complexion. If either one does not qualify, come up to a girl's expectations, she makes a terrible fuss about it. It seems as if figure defects are more easily and casually endured. At least women won't go to great lengths to overcome them, while hair and complexion troubles throw them into a terrific stride toward the beauty goal.

Makeup is an interesting subject because it is from the beauty kit that a girl hopes to find means for making up for nature's shortcomings. She can pick out commercial blushes from her store of synthetic aids, she can sketch eyebrows where eyebrows don't grow. She can presto-change blond eyelashes into heavenly black ones. Hence her gratitude to cosmetic chemists, who have certainly done well by her.

If these helps fail it is usually because she doesn't know how or when to use them.

When the sun is on the job, complexion props should be used sparingly. Do we hear the members of the beauty classes shouting "What about the lipstick?" We include that, my hearties. During the spring and summer season the complexion itself changes in color, and the brilliant red smear makes a girl look warm and flurried. The pigment should carry a sunny cast, a bit of gold with the red. There are new nasturtium shades that fill the bill.

If rouge must make roseate the feminine cheek, we urge the user thereof to employ discretion and restraint. The color should be a natural tone, laid on cleverly, beautifully blended with powder. Hard, harsh spots of red make a woman too scenic. Makeup of that brand was turned down a year ago. Ladies of fashion do not turn their faces into billboards, advertise the fact that they buy beauty wares in wholesale lots and don't care what they do with them.

In the evening one can be more vivid. Stronger tones can be used, if one wishes, but still they must be applied skillfully. Orchid eye shadows are a cunning touch. On the while-haired, blue-eyed women they are stunning. Green shadows on the red-head look better than they sound.

Don't forget that powder is the foundation of makeup, that it must match the skin coloring, be put on smoothly and patted in.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Think that over a second," I told my husband. "You won't get back to Dalemont and the Brixtons until daylight, and I want to go on to Lillian's as soon afterward as possible. I can't telephone you from Lillian's, and if I call you that early, it will waken and alarm the Brixtons, and we've agreed that neither Sam nor Helena must know of this affair."

"Right you are," Dicky admitted, his face falling.

"But," I went on swiftly, "Ronald is going to go out to a public booth at two o'clock and telephone me, to learn what I have found out. Why don't you ask him when you get there? He will know by that time everything I know. Tell him I have told you about it."

"That's an idea," he said. "I'll do that. But, nevertheless, I'm going to ask you not to leave the hotel until I call you in the morning. I'll do it as soon as I hit the station, then I'll have some later dope to pass along to Ronald.

"But tell me," he said, after an instant's silence, "how is Ronald going to get out of the house without his parents knowing?"

"He told me something of an incline down which his car could glide noiselessly to the road, far enough away so they would not know it was his car starting up."

"Probably fixed there by Ron and his pals," Dicky said cynically, but accompanying the words with an indulgent laugh. "But that fixes things all right. I'll see him as soon as I get there. So long!"

Noel Glad to See Madge.

"It sure is good to see you and have you here," he said. "I've been hoping you'd drop in."

There was a note in his voice which puzzled me. It was, I told myself, vaguely like that of a person in the grip of some grave difficulty, who sees a glimpse of aid in sight. But I dared not recognize the appeal—if, indeed, it was an appeal—so I only said, "Well! I'm here now," emphasizing the words.

"I'm awfully glad," Noel replied. "You see—"

He cut himself short, and said nothing more during the brief journey. I did not dare to question him, so I also kept silent.

When, a few months before, Noel's father, Philip Veritzen, famous theatrical impressario, had dramatically climaxed what we had all thought to be a prejudiced persecution of his young and gifted daughter-in-law, with his public recognition of her as a Veritzen star entrusted with the leading role in my play, I had been sure that the troubles of the sorely beset young pair were over.

The fact that the princess Olina, daughter of the exiled queen of Transvania, who for lack of more exciting prey had bedeviled Noel with her attentions, had been transformed into an innocuous and well-behaved "sister" by her mother's recent marriage to Noel's father, was another factor tending to tranquility.

So nothing could be brighter than the prospects of the young pair, when viewed from a material standpoint. Mary was a theatrical star on Broadway. Noel, at last, had had his operetta produced—and without his father's assistance, a point of honor with Noel, although I knew that Philip Veritzen stood ready to sponsor it—and it was succeeding, as was my own play.

Their Prospects Bright.

Also, Mary and Noel were installed in luxurious quarters at the Lansfield, quarters which cost them nothing, as the elder Veritzen owned the hotel and insisted, upon their being his guests for a year, until they should decide where they wished to have their permanent home.

Fame, material comfort, freedom from the anxiety which had racked them for so long—with all these things in their grasp, why did Noel wear this look of suffering? Why had there been that hesitant note in Mary's voice when I told her I was coming into the Lansfield at midnight, and wanted to see her?

Could it be possible that Phil Veritzen had reverted to his old ideas and was again making trouble for them? I put that speculation aside firmly. If ever a man had bene transformed, Philip Veritzen had been by his marriage to his early love, Olga, so long lost to him. His atonement to Mary had been made before that marriage, but I was certain that Olga's influence would never permit him to change his attitude, even if he himself wished to adopt another course.

Yet, I asked myself what other solution could there be for Noel's patent unhappiness?

Inventor Will Repay Townsfolk If He's a Winner

GREENVILLE, Miss —(INS)— The town's No. 1 inventor, riding a popularity wave because of his contribution to national defense, proposes to repay the townfolk for kindness rendered—if his parachute works

In a couple of weeks, Inventor George G Coleman and his collaborator, "Navy" Sowell, Memphis' famous parachute-jumper, expect to have a model of Coleman's slow-falling 'chute completed. At the War Department's invitation, they'll take it to Washington for display and tests. Already officials tested Coleman's ingenious unbrella —24 times—and gave it top rating.

If the government approves his device, Coleman said, his hope is to have a manufacturing plant for it established in Greenville, where some of the people who helped him along can benefit from his invention
